

1. What categories of people does the Contract Personnel Division handle? How many are there?

25X9

2. Who in CIA handles the personnel problems of the [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] How many are there?

25X1A

3. How much do all these people cost CIA?

4. Is CIA taking full advantage of the flexibility of the non-Staff personnel possibilities? For example, can't the PM requirements - or some of them - be handled via contract? Could much of the early 1950 build-up have been handled by contract?

5. Who examines the costs of processing (interviewing, investigating, medical examinations, testing, etc.) of non-Staff people to see if they are reasonable? What are the ground rules on such checking?

25X1A

6. Why aren't such people included in the various statistics, etc. which [REDACTED] produces on numbers of people interviewed, recruited, promoted, who leave CIA, etc., etc.

7. Who passes on decisions to hire, salary increases, decisions to terminate and such matters?

8. What are the ground rules on fitness reports for such people? Are changes in current procedures indicated?

9. Do DCI and DDCI realize we have this many non-Staff people for whom CIA pays all or most of their salaries?

10. Do the Bureau of the Budget and appropriate Congressional sub-committees know?

11. Is it desirable to have more uniformity of approach to salaries, vacations, sick leave, insurance, other fringe benefits, retirement, etc. than now exists on non-Staff people? Does the Office of Personnel have any staff studies on these matters?

12. Have CIA's responsibilities for such people been tested in the courts? For example, has it been determined legally that these people are not "government employees," and entitled to all the benefits of staff employees.